RVCC Projects is excited to host its second open-call exhibit for students, community members, and artists living or working in the Sugar River and Upper Valley regions of New Hampshire and Vermont. The open call model aligns with the college's mission of access and inclusivity and creates a space in which emerging and underrepresented artists can exhibit their work alongside established working artists. The goal of this exhibit is to celebrate the diverse artistry of our region.

In the spirit of community and collaboration, artists with diverse backgrounds and experience levels unite in a visual celebration of color, texture, and form. A variety of media are on view including quilting, photography, ceramics, oil painting, drawing and printmaking. This rich selection creates a dynamic exhibit that explores subject matter from the figure to the landscape to abstraction.
